

Find An Outlet

Your own business is very exciting. Every single day is full of surprises, opportunities, and challenges. This is extremely emotional and you will have a lot that you want to talk about. Unfortunately there is only so much that your spouse, kids, friends, neighbours, or colleagues will be willing to listen to. They are not as intrigued by the business because it isn't theirs. After a few months, they will not listen as much as they did before which may begin to be frustrating. Especially as it is still important to have an outlet.

Find an outlet who is business related only. This could be:

- A mentor
- An advisory board
- A business coach
- A consultant
- An accountant
- A lawyer
- A master mind group

Or any other business related person who is willing to hear you dump about your business regularly.

TIP: You need someone who cares to listen.

Business Solver Modules:

- ❖ Networking For A Difference
- ❖ Find Good Suppliers & Partners

