

Graduate From Your Mentor

Mentors are made to be graduated from.

You get a mentor to learn from, to grow from, and to then turn your mentor into a colleague and your equal. There is a great argument that some of the mentors are constantly growing and evolving themselves. These individuals would be hard to catch up with and equal. However, that is the goal.

So what happens when we do learn almost everything we can from a mentor? Reflect upon what you need from your mentor relationship;

- What is your business' missing link in terms of skills?
- What are your biggest challenges and do you know someone who has overcome these?
- What direction would you be interested in taking? Do you know someone travelling this path?

When you identify your gaps, you can start looking for your new mentor.

TIP: Mentors are made to be graduated from.
